unless in protecting our soil, our rights and our sovereignty from invasion or occupation by either of the belligerent parties, or of any State, it being distinctly understood that said arms and munitions of war are to be used for the distinct purpose of defending Kentucky alone."

The States Rights party voted against it because many of its provisions were extremely odious to them and chiefly because the Senate had passed a better bill which had already been reported to this House.

Mr. Lannoun asked a suspension of the Rules allowing him to offer resolutions.

The President himself took the "Louisville gentleman" to the camp of the New Jersey regiment, and introducing his friend to these neer, who had left their homes to help the Administration subvert the Government, and overthrow the Constitution, and subjugate the people of the South, as a Kentucky Unionist, this "high officer of the Government" called for three cheers for Kentucky—Apraham Lincoln, himself introduced the "Louisville gentleman" to these Abolition soldiers and called for three cheers for Kentucky. Mr. Ten Brocck's ill luck in England continues. He had lost three races at last advices, and here are more.

At Newmarket, on May 2, his Everhard was nowhere in a race; in another Umpire again ran second, and again in another.

Mr. Abell wanted a Menn on the committee, and suggested the member from Pendleton. Mr. Hitt desired the name of the member from Mercer should be added, that the committee might be an Abell one. The subject was then referred to the Fish Committee. Seymour P. Vail, well known to the Fish Committee.

The Federal Committee, to whom was referred the investigation of the secret importation of arms into the State from the North, asked the speaker to issue subpenas against certain persons, that they might be brought before them for examination, which was done.

In the Senate this morning, a resolution offered by Senator Read, fixing Friday the 24th, at 12 M., as a time for final adjournment, was adonted.

24th, at 12 M., as a time for final adjournment, was adopted.

The Committee on Military affairs asked to be discharged from the further consideration of a petition of sundry citizens of Southern Kentucky, praying the Legislature to pass an act appropriating money for the erection of a Fort at Paducah. Dr. Johnson, Senator from McCracken, in opposition to discharging the committee, made an able, eloquent, bold, fearless and frank effort. The constituents of Senator Johnson have cause to be proud of his course in the present Legislature. The cause of Southern Rights—the true cause of Kentucky—no where has a more devoted, zealous, or a truer advocate than Dr Johnson.

ohnson. Senator Rousseau, of Louisville, made senator Rousseau, of Louisville, made such aspect as you would expect to hear in a legislative assembly north of the Ohio, instead of in Kentucky. The Senator is rather bold in his "blood and thunder" assertions. He disavows being a Submissionist. The Senator's chivalry and gallantry, It think, are beyond question, but his principles are such as work. and gallantry, I think, are beyond question, but his principles are such as would involve Kentucky in a bloody and fearful internecine strife. That he is a coercionist to the fullest extent of that term, I think his own declarations clearly establish. That he is clearly in favor of having Kentucky furnish men and means for the prosecution of the Lincoln war, no one who listened to his speech will for a moment doubt. The Senator says Kentucky will never be carried out of the Union "except in blood," and "that if she is dragged out it will be over his dead corpse, or else by a constitutional mode."

There can not longer be a doubt of the deep scated determination of the Union party of this State to give their support to the usurped Government of Lincoln. They are, as I have every reason to believe, at the usurped Government of Lincoln. They are, as I have every reason to believe, at this time organizing all over the State, and equipping themselves for the purpose of overawing the real, true and loyal sentiment of the people of Kentucky. Of the correctness of this assumption I have not a doubt. They are receiving arms by the thousands from the Lincoln Government, and swearing their conductors before rich.

The bill suspending the Courts of the Commonwealth, hangs fire with the Governor and its fate is uncertain. lature. General Butler was struck down by a storm of iron hail while leading on his troops against an enemy at Monterey. Col. Marshail won immortal honors at the head of his regiment at Buenna Vista; yet no such honors were proposed to these heroes here, as are proposed to Major An derson, who defended a fort during sunshine, but gave it up in a storm. If it is the design to earry outthis programme, it and looks like a desire to precipitate Kentucky into a revolution. Major Anderson is doubtless a gentleman and a soldier, but doubtless a gentleman and a soldier, by s doubless a gentleman and a soldier, but considering the fact that he holds a posi-tion in a Lincoln army, designed to coerce and subjugate the South, his progress her na triumphal march would only tend to embitter political parties, and probably re-sult in mobs and riots and insults to the Major. I hope the proposition will be with trawn.

as an "amusing stampede:"

The Puenee, which lies opposite Alexandria, Va., with her guns bearing upon it, steamed up and swang about, changing her position and moving nearer the town. They observed from the town unusual signs of activity on board, and at once took flight. Hundreds of families moved out of the limits of the city. The alarm was given, soldiers rushed to and fro, and the few companies collected together, and with the secussion banner, left the town. The most intense excitement prevailed until the steamer quietly dropped anchor, closed her port-holes, and everything was quiet again. Then the people came slowly back to town, followed the next morning by the brave soldiers.

EVENING SESSION

FRANKFORT, May, 21, 1861. The question being upon adopting the amendment proposed this morning by Mr. SIMPSON,

The roll was called.
Mr. GROVER moved a call of the Sen M. ANDBEWS demanded the year and M. ANDBEWS demanded the yeas and mays, which resulted as follows:

The third clerk, Mr. Rice, and the mail agent, Mr. A. M. Stoddart, being up at the time, were on the forward deck, and esceped unhurt.

The surviving officers of the Kentucky and Dr. Talbot, ninself badly scalded about the feet, as well as the resident physicians. not recognize the blockade proclaimed of the Southern ports unless it were made effective, but that they did recognize the legality of the letters of marque issued by President Davis. Now, the Washington Government threatens to treat the holders of these letters of marque as pirates, and unless the spirit of Yankeeland has sunk very low, they will probably show fight also on the blockade question. It is evident that Lord John knew more about this matter than he chose to communicate to the House and the public. And it is also evident that no more favorable occasion than the present is likely to offer for striking a blow at one of the few maritime rivals England has cause to dread.

Russell to Recognize the Rebel Letters of Marque.

[From the Boston Evening Transcript, May 18.] The foreign papers received this morning by the steamer Parana give a more complete report than that sent by telegraph of the debate in Parliament on American atlairs. Lord John Russell is reported to have said: "As to the letters of marque, there was a precedent in the case of Greece when it separated from Tarkey. The right of that country to issue letters of marque was allowed, and the law officers of the crown, who had been consulted, had declared that such a right would belong to the Southern Confederacy."

This is a very important statement, but it may only mean that Great Britain will not, like the United States, regard the Southern privateers as pirates, Pirates being the enemies of all civilized powers, to take this ground; yet she may none the less refuse to allow her ports to be used by Southern privateers, and her courts to adjudicate on prizes. Meanwhile the London Times says that there are letters of marque in London.

That they will allow the cotten supply to be cut off by the blockade of the Southern ports is hardly to be expected.

Deubtful questions of right are easily and promptly settled when there is no doubt about the question of ioree. The burning of Gosport dockyard has, for the moment, placed the United States navy at England's mercy, and if, on this occasion, England is considered as a rival and a foe, we must be nearer to the millennium than is popularly supposed. This has been announced to the House of Commons by Lord John Russell in words which point strongly in the direction of a rupture between England and the United States. Lord John declared that the British Government would not recognize the blockade proclaimed of feetive, but that they did recognize the legality of the letters of marque issued by President Davis. It would also follow that, as a neutral government, British would be restrained from sending any articles contraband of war to either of the belligerent parties, and the consequence would be, as the British journals foresee, that the federal government would also resort to privateering as well as to blockade, and capture enemy's property in neutral ships whenever it could be found upon the seas, and also enemy's ships with neutral property.

A VICTIM TO SLANDER.—Mrs. Kerg, of

Louisville Gold Pen Manufactory

THURSDAY MORNING

The Principles of 1776-83, The Revolution now going on in the Southern States is but a return to the principles of the patriots of 1776.

These principles have never been surrendered by the American people, al- in though, first the Federal party, and last Po the Republican party, have essayed to overlurn them-essayed to do so in the theory of consolidation, which they have endeavored to establish, and in which united Northern States, and all the feeble scions of Federalism in the Southern, or rather Border, States.

But Federalism, until the year 1861, by whatever party presented to them, has ever been repudiated by the American people in the States of the Union, save the Blue Light States of New England, which have always maintained more love for Old England than they ever did for their sister Southern States, who stood nobly by them in the battles for a common as well as a separate Independence New England, which has refused to fur nish troops to fight a foreign foe, but is now readiest of all to imbrae her hands in the blood of enlightened Christian Southern people for daring to assert their Inde pendence in the inalicnable sovereignty of their States, has ever clung with much tenacity to Federalism, with the exception of Massachusetts, which did adopt an act Texas, but never had the boldness to eve attempt its maintenance. Because of the dangerous construction which it was feared would be given to the Constitution, its adoption encountered very great opposition in all the States; indeed, it was approved with but little unan imity by any of them. It was really adopted more as a preventive of immediat anarchy, with the confident expectation of proper modification, than because of th deliberate approval of the States.

Although others were more tardy, in no State dld its adoption meet with strongs opposition than in Virginia. In her ratify ng convention, its adoption was opposed by the wonderful power and eloquence o PATRICK HENRY, and the wisdom and po litical prescience of James Monros, after wards President Monroe; and in a body o one hundred and sixty-eight delegates i was ratified by a insjority of only ten votes and then upon condition that certain amendments should be made to it, the chief among which was that "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it, are reserved to the States respectively or the people."

The chief ground on which many of the great and patrioticimen of that day, partienlarly in Virginia, opposed its adoption, was that it was a consolidated, instead of a confederated Government; that in making ! so, the delegates at Philadelphia had transcended the limits of their commis sion; changed fundamentally the relation which the States had chosen to bear to each other; annihilated their respective sovereignties; destroyed the barriers which divided them; and converted the whole in to one solid empire.

That such would be the character of Gov ernment formed by it, was then denied by its supporters : that such is the characte of Government formed by it, is now asserted by Lincoln and his friends, notwith standing the 10th amendment just mentioned.

The man of all others who bore the most active part and attracted most attention in the Virginia Convention was PATRICK HENRY, who was ever the advocate of the people and State sovereignty; who, in the House of Burgesses first lighted the torch of American Independence, which, from Massachusetts to Georgia, enveloped tyran- the Higher Law. my in one universal and simultaneous conflagration of patriotic destruction: who (Speaker Robinson) in his den, and respond to the cries of a tyrant's slaves, "If this be treason, make the most of it." It is interesting, if not profitable, to re cur to the views of that great and far-seeing man in regard to the character and danger of the Government then about to be inaugurated. In opening the debate in that august body-the Virginia Convention, he

MR. CHAIRMAN: The public mind, a well as my own, is extremely uneasy at the proposed change of government. Give m leave to form one of those who wish to be thoroughly acquainted with the reasons of this peritous and uneasy situation, and why we are brought hither to decide on the great national question. I consider mys great national question. I consider mysel as a servant of the people of this Common wealth—as a sentinel over their rights, lib city and happiness. I represent their feelings when I say that they are exceedingly uneasy, being brought from that state of full security which they enjoyed to the present delusing appearance of things. I year ago the minds of our citizens were a prefer a present delusing appearance of things. year ago the minds of our chizens were at perfect repose. Before the meeting of the late Federal Convention at Philadelphia, a general peace and an universal tranquility prevailed in this country. But since that period they are exceedingly uneasy and disquieted.

And why? Because of the radical change they thought they saw in the form of government, subverting the sovereignty of the States and thereby sweeping away the libertles of the people, as more clearly shown in the pregnant inquiries made by Mr. Henry in the same speech, as follows And here I would make this inquiry those worthy characters who composed part of the late Federal Convention. I: sure they were fully impressed with necessity of forming a great consoli Government, instead of Confederation. this is a consolidated Government is demonstrably clear, and the danger of such a Government is to my mind very striking I have the highest veneration for those centlement by S. I have the highest veneration for those gentlemen; but, Sir, give me leave to demand, what right had they to say, "we, the people?" My political curiosity, exclusive of my anxions solicitude for the public welfare, leads me to ask, who authorized them to speak the language of "me, the prople," instead of we, the States are the characteristics and the soul of a Confederation. If the States be not the agents of this compact, it must be one great, convolidated, national Government of the people of all the States. Again:

"Here is a revolution as tadical as that which separated us from Great Britain. It is as radical, if in this our rights and privileges are endangored, and the sovereignty of the States be relinguished; and cannot we plainly see that this is actually the case? Happy will you be if you miss the fate of those nations, who, omitting to resist their oppressors, or negligently suffering their liberty to be wrested from them, have greaned under intolerable despotism! Most of the human race are now in this deplorable condition. And those nations who have gone in search of grandeur, power, and splender, have also fallen a sacrifice, and been the victims of their own folly. While they acquired those visionary blessings, they lost their freedom. My great objection to this Government is, it does not leave us the means of defending our rights, or of waging war against tyrants. [Such as Lincoln.] It is arged by some gentlemen, that this new plan will bring us an acquisition of strength, an "Here is a revolution as radical as that bring us an acquisition of strength, a army, and the militia of the States. Thi bring us an acquisition of strength, an army, and the militin of the States. This is an idea extremely ridiculous: gentlemen cannot be in exruest. This acquisition will trample on your fallen liberty! Let my beloved Americans guard against that fatal lethargy that has pervaded the universe. Have we the means of resisting disciplined armics, when our only defense—the militia—is put into the hands of Congress?" Also: "This, sir, is the language of Democracy, that a majority of the community have a right to alter their Government when found to be oppressive; but how different is the genius of your new Constitution from this? How different from the sentiments of freemen, that a contemptible minority can prevent the good of the majority? [By a few small States preventing any amendment to the Constitution.] If, then, gentlemen standing on this ground, are come to that point, that they are willing to bind themselves and their posterity to be oppressed, I am amazed, and incrpressibly astonished."

future danger to the sovereignty of the yet to struggle for a Union which they States and the liberties of the people, Mr. knew had no longer an existence—you see PENDLETON, a friend of the Constitution and the President of the Convention, said you see the abyss into which they would

as to prevent such abuse, and punish our ser

Well, as Mr. PENDLETON said they could do, Virginia has assembled in Convention, and wholly recalled her delegated powers. It seems that the friends of the Constitu tion then did not doubt the right of a State to recall her delegated powers. But how did the farseeing HENRY reply to this proposition. Thus:

now did the larseeing filekal reply to this proposition. Thus:

"The honorable gentleman who presides told us that, to prevent abuses in our Government, we will assemble in Convention, recall our delegated powers, and punish our servants for abusing the trust reposed in them. Oh! sir, we would have lively times, indeed, if to punish tyrants it were only necessary to assemble the people! Your arms wherewith you could defend yourselves are gone! and you have no longer an aristocratical, no longer a democratical spirit. Did you ever read of any revolution in any nation, brought about by the punishment of those in power, inflicted by those who had no power at all! You read of a riot act in a country which is called one of the freest in the world, where a few neighbors cannot assemble without the risk of being shot by a hired soldiery—the engines of despotism. We may see such an act in America. A standing army we shall have, also, to execute the execratic communication of the trees?

He added:

He added: "if your American chief be a man of am-bition and abilities, how easy it is for him to render himself absolute! The army is in his hands; and, if he be a man of address, it will be attached to him; and it will be a subject the orditarial to him; and it will be a subject floop meditation with him to seize the first suspicious moment to accomplish his design; and, sir, will the American spirit solely relieve you when this happens? I would rather, infinitely, and I am sure most of this lonvention are of the same opinion, have King, Lords and Commons, than a government so replete with such insupportaernment so replete with such insupporta-tive evils. If we make a King we may prescribe the rules by which he shall rule his people, and interpose such checks as shall prevent him from infringing them; but the President in the field, at the head of his army, can prescribe the terms on which hall reign master, so far that it will he shall reign master, so far that it will puzzle any American ever to get his neck from under the galling yoke. I cannot, with patience, think of this idea." "But, sir, where is the existing force to punish him? Can he not, at the head of his army, beat down every opposition? Away with your President; we shall have a King; the army will salute him monarch; your militia will leave you and assist in making him King, and fight acquiret your, and what have King, and fight against you; and what have out to oppose this force? What will hen become of you and your rights? Will not absolute despotism ensue?"

The fears of Mr. HENRY and those other patriot statesmen who acted with him did not control the Convention. The argu- Black Silk Mantles; Alexandar and Bajou's ments by which they were met by PEX- Kid Gloves; Lace Mitts, Hoslery and Fans DILETGN, MADISON, WYTHE, RANDOLPH and | English and American Prints and Chintzes; the great men who advocated the adoption of the Constitution satisfied a bare majori- and complete; Mourning Goods in every ty, and, recommending the amendment we quality and fabric, at prices to suit the have quoted, which was afterwards incorcornted into the Constitution, it was agreed o by Virginia.

Alas! the apprehensions of its opponents have been justified by subsequent events. At last a construction of the Constitution has prevailed which makes it all that HEN-RY denounced it for. At last a President and Cabinet acting in accordance with that construction have assumed absolute power, made the Government a despotism, and destroyed the liberties of the people of those States which have not resumed their lelegated powers.

No Constitutional monarch on earth exreises such power as the Administration has usurped with the sanction of the Northern States. Lincoln is not a man of ability, but how easy he has rendered himself absolute! who support him approve his usurpation and plaid nainsooks, white cambries, soft of the power to increase that army to any extent he thinks necessary to the accomplishment of his purposes. The Constitution is construed as HENRY and its opponents predicted it would be, as Madison and its friends said it could not be; and but for the resumption of their delegated power by a portion of the States, the Government of our fathers would have no existence, but in its stead would be a despotism controlled in its acts only by

The Southern Confederacy has adopted the principles of 1783 in its Constitution, Drug Store. ich all the ambiguities behind which those who have warred on State Rights have sheltered themselves are re. noved; and on the preservation and perpetuation of that Confederacy depends the fate of Republicanism in America and hroughout the world. It is the last refuge, the only hope, of Constitutional liberty.

More Toryism. That Kentnekians who would enter into negotiations with LINCOLN and the perjured miscreants he has called around him, looking to the inauguration of civil war in their own State, are capable of anything, however atrocious, that is necessary to enable them to carry out their infernal plans, none will doubt. That anybody could forge such a falsehood, as that Tennessee meditates seizing the Nashville railroad here, and make that a pretext for supplicating the aid of an abolition State to resist such an invasion, seems so incredible that we cannot bu hope that the Indianapolis Sentinel, of yes terday, labored under some strange hallucination when it published, in a leading editorial, the following, to which, however er, we invite the attention of our fellow citizens of Louisville and of Kentucky: citizens of Louisville and of Kentucky:

In this connection it may not be amiss to state that the Union men of Louisville have had some fears or perhaps threats that Tennessee troops intended to make a demonstration upon that city for the purpose of overawing the Union sentiment and to take possession of the Nashville Railroad. A committee of the citizens of Louisville, who are in favor of the Union, visited our city on Monday last, to solicit the aid of the Governor in case those threats were put in execution. The Governor promised to send them a regiment of threats were put in execution. The Governor promised to send them a regiment of troops in case of an attack from that quarter. We do not believe there is any just cause for these apprehensions of danger, but if there is, the proper source to apply for aid is the General Government, which is pledged to assist the Union men in all the Southern States to the extent of its power. One thing is certain, however, whenever the Union men of Kentucky reed assistance to maintain their position of loyalty to the General Government, they will find not only the sympathy of Indiana with them, but her patriotic citizens will farnish them all the material aid they may need, yet we are unwilling to anticipate that any such contingency or occasion for their services will ever arise.

No man in Louisville has had any fears,

No man in Lou sville has had any fears, or heard any threats, that Tennessee would make a demonstration on this city, or on any other place in Kentucky. No man in Tennessee ever dreamed or thought of such a thing. There has never been any danger of an avasion of this State by any Southern State or the people of any Southern State. There is no disposition in Tennessee o in any Southern State to "overawe the Union sentiment " in Louisville or in any other place in Kentucky.

They recognize the right of Kentuckyto do just as her people choose; and the Confederate States would not wish Kentucky to join them, if such a thing were possible, against the wishes of a majority of her

The whole thing is preposterous, absurd, disgraceful. Mr. Bailey, member elect from the Worcester, Mass., District, has arrived from Enterprise, Florida, where he spent the Spring, mostly on account of his health.—He came via Savannah, Nashville and Louisville. He was advised that it was impossible to come through Virignia. Having met two men he turned back. His party consisted of thirty persons, including six Northern school masters. The others were invalids, and two army Lieutenants. The latter were threatened by a Savannah mob, who were appeased by a West Point class mate, a Lieutenant in the Confederate army, and a formula arrest was made by the Mayor, who advised their immediate departure. At Atlauta Mr. Bailey's haggage was searched by a committee of the crowd. Especial attention was paid to the school masters by the troops. Afterward the party divides. No passes were required. IT WILL RESTORE THE NATURAL COL.

IT WILL BESTORE THE NATURAL COL-OR OF THE HAIR, where age or sickness has turned it grey, and it will render it soft and glossy.

Who may try it, will find that it does not color the skin, but by stimulating the natural secretions at the roots, gives new life and strength to the Hair, and thus restores it color and freshness. It can be used as freely as water upon the cealp, and with as much safety—is compassed of oil and stimulating spirits, and as as article for the tolict, basin equal. Read this Letter:

The river trade is pretty well blockaded for the season, and fi is immaterial whether the river is high or low. The finances of the boatmen, though, are running very low.

At St. Louis the Mississippi is receding, though at a most excellent navigable stage, with nothing doing.

At Memphis, Tuesday, the river was swelling slowly, and business rather brisk. The Alonzo Child had taken the place of the unfortunate Kentucky in the mail trade between Memphis and Vicksburg.

The particulars of the disaster of the Kentucky will be seen in another column. It appears that it was caused by bursting a steam drum. It occurred on her upward trip, just as the boat was leaving Columbia. By the following from the Memphis Appeal it will be seen that boats are being stopped at that port as reprisals: encht to-night.
